Protecting Your Business From the Unexpected

Running a business means making decisions every day to protect what you have built. The right insurance strategy can help prepare your business for unexpected events that may create financial challenges.

1. General Liability
Helps protect your business against certain claims involving bodily injury, property damage, or personal and advertising injury connected to your business operations.
2. Errors & Omissions
Also known as professional liability insurance. It can help protect professionals when a client claims that an error, omission, or problem with professional services caused financial harm.
3. Business Property
Your equipment, inventory, furniture, technology, and other property represent an investment. Appropriate coverage can help address certain covered losses or damage.
4. Business Interruption
An unexpected event can temporarily affect your ability to operate and generate income. Consider how your business would manage expenses during a disruption.
5. Employee Protection
Having employees can create additional responsibilities and risks. Review the coverage appropriate for your workforce and business operations.
6. Review Your Coverage
Your needs can change as your business grows. New employees, locations, equipment, services, contracts, and revenue may change your risk profile.

BUSINESS PROTECTION CHECK
□ Could my business face a liability claim?
□ What happens if a client claims professional negligence?
□ Is my business property adequately protected?
□ Could I manage expenses during an interruption?
□ Have I reviewed my coverage recently?
Protect What You've Built
Your business represents time, effort, investment, and opportunity. A thoughtful protection strategy can help you prepare for risks before they become unexpected financial burdens.
